

WHOLSUM
FOODS

PRIVATE. IN A LIMITED WAY.

Savoury Pancake Mixes

Why??

WHOLSUM
FOODS

For too long, India and the world have accepted convenient breakfasts as nothing more than sugary cereals or the same old boring eggs. But what if savory pancakes could change how the world eats?

Slurp Farm believes in a better-for-you, quick-fix format with the goodness of millets—available in flavors that actually excite children and encourage them to start their day without a glucose spike. With more and more experts speaking about how children shouldn't consume sugar at all, eliminating it from the first meal of the day gives parents more leeway to create better, balanced meals for the rest of the day.

Modern Indian parents simply don't have the time to prepare traditional, labor-intensive breakfasts like parathas or idlis. That's where these easy mix-and-dump breakfasts come in—no soaking grains the night before, no elaborate prep. Just wholesome nutrition that keeps kids full for longer thanks to the power of millets, while reshaping their expectations away from sugar-laden mornings.

The statistics speak for themselves: about 1 in 4 people skip breakfast in major metropolitan cities, and many school children go without a balanced morning meal. It's time to change that—one savory

Why?

WHOLSUM
FOODS

Global Preferences

General surveys show a split in morning tastes.

Preference	Percentage	Source
Savory	45%	boho-x
Sweet	30%	boho-x
Both	25%	boho-x

Why?

WHOLSUM
FOODS

- Ready-to-eat cereals dominate (74% share), but ready-to-cook options grow fastest at 6.62% CAGR, suiting savory pancake premixes. mordorintelligence
- Urban time constraints boost frozen/ready-to-cook snacks to Rs 3,500 crore (~$420M), with low 6-7% penetration. imarcgroup
- Health focus increases demand for nutrient-rich, protein-forward breakfasts over traditional sweets. kelloggs +1

Why?

WHOLSUM
FOODS

- Ready-to-eat cereals dominate (74% share), but ready-to-cook options grow fastest at 6.62% CAGR, suiting savory pancake premixes. mordorintelligence
- Urban time constraints boost frozen/ready-to-cook snacks to Rs 3,500 crore (~$420M), with low 6-7% penetration. imarcgroup
- Health focus increases demand for nutrient-rich, protein-forward breakfasts over traditional sweets. kelloggs +1

Why?

WHOLSUM
FOODS

Metric	India (2026 Est.)	Global (2026 Est.)
TAM	Breakfast premixes + savory snacks: $10-15B futuremarketinsights +1	Pancake mixes: ~$600-700M marketdataforecast +1
SAM	Urban savory batter premixes: $500M-$1B hospitality.economictimes +1	Savory/Asia-Pacific premixes: $50-100M hospitality.economictimes +1
SOM	New entrant share: $5-50M qsrmedia	Export share: $1-10M reanin

How does it add to the SF portfolio?

WHOLSUM
FOODS

First-mover in savory millet pancakes differentiates from QSR (Uncle Peter's) and rivals, aligning with "zero junk" ethos amid millet promotion (Budget 2026 boosts).

Increases repeat buys (family packs for breakfast/snacks), lifts AOV 15-25% through bundles, and fuels influencer virality (2,500+ partners).

TAP INTO THE LUNCHBOX SPACE WITH PANCAKES

These pancakes cook in 5-10 minutes using Slurrrp's millet premix base (just add water/egg, fold in onions, spinach, or masala), yielding soft, stackable portions that stay moist without refrigeration. Parents slice them into fingers or rolls, pairing with ketchup or chutney for 2-3 hour portability—far better than soggy parathas.

- Packed with ragi/jowar protein (10-12g per serving), hidden veggies curb picky eating while mimicking dosa/upma tastes 90% of Indian kids prefer over sweet pancakes.
- Addresses lunch box monotony (common in urban India, where 70% parents seek variety), boosting consumption amid breakfast skipping trends.
- Slurrrp's "zero junk" branding reassures allergen-conscious moms, with examples like potato-spinach variants already tiffin-tested.

This extends savory pancakes beyond breakfast, turning Slurrrp packs into daily essentials for working parents

How does it add to the SF portfolio?

The logo for Wholsum Foods, featuring the words "WHOLSUM" and "FOODS" in a bold, white, sans-serif font stacked vertically on a solid yellow rectangular background.

Kid-Parent Appeal Synergy

These flavors mimic popular snacks (pizza bites, nachos, corn cheese toast) that 80% of urban Indian kids aged 5-12 request, while Slurp's millet base delivers 10-15g protein, hidden veggies, and zero maida per serving—addressing parents' top concerns like nutrition gaps and obesity (affecting 20% school kids). Parents get guilt-free convenience (prep under 10 mins), kids get familiar tastes without the "healthy" label turning them off.

Muffin Conversion Benefits

Appeal Expansion: Kids see them as "pizza bites" or "cheese pops," driving repeat buys; stack for lunch boxes or freeze for weekly batches.

A child says, “Momm, I want pizza for breakfast.”

The instinctive response — “Who eats pizza in the morning?”

And then someone barges in saying ... why not?

Introducing Slurp Farm Veggie Pizza Savory Pancakes — making kids’ favourite food the first thing they eat in the morning, without compromise. Same excitement. Better ingredients. A breakfast that feels like fun, not food rules.